

Prominent Cook County Officials Attend Opening of Southwest Highway

With impressive and colorful ceremonies the Southwest Highway was formally accepted from the contractors and dedicated to public use by the Cook County Board of Commissioners on Saturday, October 11. A parade of more than 100 cars assembled at the junction of Cicero ave., and the Southwest Highway just north of Oak Lawn and headed by a squad of motorcycle police made its way over the new highway through the villages of Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Worth and passed before the reviewing stand just south of the new overhead causeway at 127th street in Palos Park. Here an enthusiastic crowd had assembled to witness the final ceremony of cutting the emblematic ribbons that would formally open the Highway to public use. Ed. Cowan of Orland Park, President of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce, thru the efforts of which organization the completion of the highway was largely responsible, was in charge of the program and acted as master of ceremonies.

In the absence of Mr. Cermak, president of the Board of County Commissioners of Cook County, Mr. Robert Sweitzer, county clerk, acting for the county, formally accepted the highway from the contractors. Mr. Sweitzer spoke at length on the new avenue for development that the Southwest Highway would be the means of opening up for the entire Southwest Community and on behalf of Cook County then formally dedicated the Highway to public use.

Stretched across the highway were streamers of red, white and blue, emblematic of the last barrier to be broken before the new road was actually in public use. President Cowan called on the mayors of the various towns along the route of the highway to perform this pleasing duty. Mayor Ruecis of Chicago Ridge broke the first strand, Mayor Harnew of Oak Lawn, the next, Mayor Conway of Worth the next, Mayor Mahaffay of Palos Park the next and Mayor Jennings of Orland Park the final. There were two strands remaining to be broken, one emblematic of the village of Lemont and the others representing the Southwest Towns of Chamber of Commerce. In the absence of Mayor McCarthy of Lemont and of Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park, first President of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce, the honor of breaking the final barriers to the opening of the highway was delegated to Judge Sherman S. Knox of Orland Park, who with Dr. Schussler was one of the original officers of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce.

Congressman Sproul spoke at length on the benefits that would accrue to the community thru this new super-highway. He was followed by Judge Stanton, candidate for Circuit Court Judge and by John Conroy, Cook County Assessor, both of whom had been active in promoting the highway. W. Frank Walkowiak of Argo and Summit, well known as a newspaper publisher and general booster of the Southwest district and now a candidate for County Commissioner, gave a word picture of the past development of this district and painted a glowing future for the communities now opened up by the Southwest Highway. Mr. Kelly, candidate for congress and Mr. Lelivet, candidate for the State Senate also added their hopes and prophecies for increased development of the district.

Barring certain stretches, where because of right of way disputes or uncompleted bridges, etc., the highway is practically completed from 75th and Western ave., Chicago to the county line on Wolf Road. However, it is possible by slight detours, to even now utilize the highway with its consequent saving of time and distance right into Chicago.

Republican Club Organized at Orland

Orland Republicans have organized a Republican club to promote a better understanding of political conditions in their community.

Heretofore there has been considerable factional politics in Orland and it is hoped that the organization of this club will have a tendency to alleviate this condition.

A meeting was held on Friday night, October 10th for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were chosen:

President, Dr. W. R. Schussler; Vice-Presidents, Inez Melchor and John F. Schmadeke; Secretary, John L. Klein; Treasurer, Carl Quigley.

A discussion followed and it was decided to have a meeting on Thursday, October 23rd for the purpose of introducing the organization to the entire community.

The club extends an invitation to all Republicans to attend this meeting which will be held at the Orland school.

Many prominent speakers will be assembled to explain the confronting problems of the next election, and it is hoped that desirable results will be attained.

DEPUTIES RAID MOKENA ICE CREAM PARLOR

The ice cream parlor and pool room conducted by Willard Martie and Walter Hommerding in Mokena was raided by special investigator, Edward Powers for the Will County State attorney's office and Constable Steen Friday afternoon and four and a half jugs of moonshine and 2 barrels of beer were seized. August Braun who was in charge of the place at the time was arrested and arraigned before Judge Andrew Graham and upon pleading guilty he was fined $200 and costs.

Judge Graham states that complaints from several women in Mokena against this place came to the state attorneys office saying that young boys were being sold liquor and that gambling was going on. Mr. Martie says these charges are untrue.

Halloween Program At Orland Park P. T. A. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park P. T. A., was held Thursday evening, October 9th and was attended by a capacity audience. The routine business was dispensed with with despatch by president Hilda Cox. The prize picture, presented by the P. T. A. to the room having the largest representation of parents at the meetings was on exhibition. This picture, selected by Judge Sherman S. Knox, is a magnificent reproduction of H. Cliff Hutchins western masterpiece, "The Covered Wagon". On the basis of attendance at this meeting, the custody of the picture for the next month goes to Miss Schmadeke's Intermediate room.

Mrs. Lillian Knox, chairman of the membership committee, reported the securing of 15 new members. Following the business meeting, Mrs. T. J. DeWilde of Berwyn, Regional Director of District 19, representing the State Headquarters of the Association, spoke at length on the purposes and ideals of the Association. She congratulated the Orland Park Association on the progress it had made during the past year and stated she expected even greater accomplishments in the coming year. She presented a report of the district conference held in Harvey last week at which the Orland Park association was represented by President Hilda Cox and Mrs. Wade Thomas.

At the conclusion of Mrs. DeWilde's address, the program was turned over to Mrs. Wade Thomas, chairman of the entertainment committee. Mrs. Thomas had secured several ladies from the Institute of Music of Chicago who presented a worth while program of songs and choruses. Particularly interesting were several numbers presented in gypsy costume, which with the general halloween decorations of the stage and the auditorium as a background, made a very effective number. Every member of the chorus was an artist and those fortunate enough to be present, were treated to a very enjoyable program. The evening was brought to a close by the playing of halloween games and the serving of refreshments. Miss Wolljean, garbed as a gypsy presided over a fortune telling booth that proved to be a very popular attraction. Refreshments consisting of cider, individual pumpkin pies and doughnuts was a pleasing and acceptable innovation.

Mrs. Thomas is endeavoring to organize a chorus from the membership of the P. T. A. to be known as the "Mothers Chorus". However, further details of this project remains to be worked out and announcement will be made of the result in the near future.

Palos Democrats Open Headquarters

The Palos Park Democratic club, under the leadership of Judge John Kavanaugh have opened up headquarters at 88th ave., and 123rd st. The headquarters utilize the entire residence next to the Carrier Store and it is planned to keep it open at all time until after election. Palos and Orland Democrats are waging a mighty campaign to aid in the election of one of our own neighbors to the office of County Commissioner, Michael J. Flynn, President of the Inland Tire and Rubber Company and former city treasurer of Chicago and for the past 10 years a resident of Palos Park has been placed on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for County Commissioner and the entire community is boosting his candidacy.

Organize American Legion Post at Orland Park

Upon receipt of word from District Commander O'Connell that the application for temporary charter for the Orland Park Post of the American Legion had been approved the members of the new Post met in the Orland Park school on Tuesday evening, October 14, to elect officers and perfect organization plans.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Judge Sherman S. Knox, past commander, through whose initiative and efforts the Post was organized. Judge Knox stated that inasmuch as he already had the honor of being a Past Commander and that it was against the policy of the Legion to encourage holders of elective Public office to hold similar office in Legion Posts, that he did not wish to be considered a candidate for any Post office. Where upon nominations were called for the office of first commander of the Orland Park Post, and the names of Van Buren Knox and W. R. Schussler Jr., were placed before the Post for consideration. Comrade Van Buren Knox, however, stated that owing to business and personal reasons, he would be unable to give proper time and attention to the office if elected and asked that his name be withdrawn and that the choice of W. R. Schussler Jr., for commander be made unanimous, which was accordingly done. The following officers were then filled by unanimous vote in each case: Senior Vice Commander, Van Buren Knox; Junior Vice Commander, Herman Kruspe; Adjutant, Lawrence Cahill; Finance officer, Geo. Cox.

The various appointive offices are to be filled by selection by the new Commander and the appointives announced at the next meeting. Upon motion of Judge Knox, a committee consisting of the Commander and Senior and Junior Vice Commander was elected to draft Post by-laws and submit them for action at the next meeting.

Refreshments, consisting of doughnuts and coffee, were provided with Judge Knox acting as cook and comrades Rahn and Eckland as K. P's.

The next meeting of the Post is set for Tuesday evening, October 21 at 8 P. M., at the Orland Park school house when the by-laws will be submitted for adoption, and other details of organization completed.

The new Post starts out with a membership of 20 and it is expected to swell this number to 50 before the permanent charter is issued.

Start Mud Slinging Party At Mokena

A mud sling campaign has begun in Mokena, not in a political way, but a group of would-be smart kids spattered all the show windows of the Mokena Hardware Company store Wednesday night. Milton Krapp, owner of the store says it will be just too bad if the guilty culprits are found.

Children are warned not use talow or other greasy substance to smear windows with during the Halloween season as it is hard work to get the grease off the glass.

Tinley Legion News

Tinley Park No. 615 has been engaged in a membership drive for the past few weeks. The results to date have been very gratifying and the Post is already assured a larger 1931 membership than it had for 1930.

A large measure of credit for the success of the campaign is due to the untiring efforts of the membership committee, which has been on the job morning, noon and night.

The Post now entertains the hope that by the time the snow flies, every eligible man in the community will have a Legion membership card in his pocket.

Remember the big Legion dance at the Saenger hall, November 1st.

A Wabash train hit an auto on a crossing in Oak Lawn Thursday afternoon. A man and a woman were injured. The auto was wrecked.

Tinley Park Lions Club News Notes

The Tinley Park Lions Club held a real peppy meeting Monday night. A feature of the evening were two addresses, by W. H. McClelland, district Lion governor of Illinois and secretary general Melvin Jones.

In his address district governor McClelland pointed out that there are now 2,606 Lions clubs with a total membership of 84,000 members.

Among the activities the Lions International are working on is the promotion of a "Business Conscience week" from October 19 to 26th with the object of promoting interest in business and help overcome the depression. Another activity is the turning of book covers to public schools containing safety mottoes as well as safety hints with the view in mind of keeping safety thoughts before the pupils all the time.

Secretary general Jones made a very pleasing and interesting address setting forth the many things Lionism does in building men and cities. He outlined the reason why the Lion was chosen as a symbol of the club. The emblematic meaning is courage, activity and fidelity.

Mr. Jones showed that the Lions are engaged in 15,000 various kinds of activities. The aim is to create a spirit of brotherliness among all the members and to improve and build up communities. Tinley Park is a good example what Lionism does for a community.

Among the visitors present were Dr. R. H. Carmichael, Edward Henke and Selby Hirsch, the latter not having attended a Lions meeting for 13 years. Dr. Carmichael was taken in as a new member and was given the Lions roar.

The Tinley Lions are going to put on a Halloween Party at the Community hall October 27th and voted to invite the Tinley Park Post of the American Legion to join in the party.

Lion President Fred Goebel appointed John F. Boeyer and Paul Rauhoff on the school building committee to work with the Tinley Park school board on planning for a new addition to the Tinley school. Upon the insistent demand of the Lion members Mr. Goebel was also appointed on this committee.

The Tinley Lions are also seriously considering a plan calling for the purchase in or adjacent to the village for the purpose of creating a local playground or park.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served.

To Celebrate Completion of Wolf Road Paving

The News-Bulletin which has played a very prominent part in securing the paving of Wolf road, is taking up to sponsor a celebration when the highway is dedicated to public use on its completion. Plans for a real celebration program are now in process of formulation. Watch for further particulars in the near future.

Some Mokena men who are out of work have been hoping to get a job when paving work started on Wolf road. This week when these men tried to get a job they were asked if they had a union card and when they said they did not, there was no work for them. They were told only union men can work on this job. It seems too bad that men who are anxious to work should be refused a chance to earn a living because they are not affiliated with the union. It is conditions like this that cause the spread of crime and communism. The unemployed situation is certainly not helped any by this kind of a deal.

Because some men can't put up enough money to join a union, they must either starve or turn criminal.

Mokena P. T. A. Notes

The second annual conference of District 22, Illinois Congress of parents and teachers will be held Wednesday, Oct. 22nd at the Central Presbyterian church, Richards st., and First ave., Joliet. The morning session beginning at 9 a. m., the afternoon at 1:30 p. m. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock noon at the church. We are anxious that there be a large representation from Mokena. Several ladies have offered to drive down and there will be plenty of room for all that can go. All wishing to go should let Mrs. Carl Hirsch know as soon as possible. How can we spend a day to a better advantage, than to attend our conference? It is a vital conference for it pertains to the welfare of our children and what is nearer or dearer to a parent's heart than their child; so knowing this, we are urging you to make every possible effort to attend.

The morning address will be given by Mrs. Harry R. Detweiler, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. The afternoon address by Supt. A. H. Perrin of Joliet. We want you to come and go with us.

NOTICE

Owing to heavy run of advertising this week, many news items had to be held over until next week.

POURING OF CONCRETE ON WOLF ROAD IN WILL CO. BEGUN WEDNESDAY

Mokena is a bee hive of activity these days since Powers-Thompson have begun paving work on Wolf road. The first concrete on Will county Wolf road paving was poured at the county line north of Mokena Wednesday of this week, several hundred feet being laid the first day. Powers-Thompson have moved their road building machinery here from Plainfield and have a fleet of fifteen trucks on the job. The side track has been extended eastward from the Rock Island depot at Mokena to take care of the cars of stone coming in daily. Cars loaded with cement are placed on the side track south of the depot. After the trucks are loaded they are run thru the village to the Lawrence Kohl corner, thence west on a dirt road to Wolf road. This has to be done to avoid conflict with the grading work now under way in the village limits by Pronger Bros. At the rate the work is being pushed along and if weather conditions hold out favorably it is thought the concrete paving will be laid up to the village in two or three weeks.

At last Wolf road is coming into its own after years of fighting.

The fight is not over yet, as right of way must yet be secured to perfect the connection of Wolf Road with Lincoln highway south of Mokena. Nothing has been done by the county bond issue committee or the county right of way committee to secure the needed right of way and Mokena feels that action must be taken at once to get action on this matter and The News-Bulletin recommends that every pressure possible be brought on the powers that be to get the south end right of way question on the Wolf road, settled. There is no reason why this right of way cannot be acquired this fall, contract let and grading work started so the saving south from the Hickory creek bridge to the Lincoln highway can be completed by next spring. No further delay on this matter should be tolerated now.

GEO. LAUFFER IS SUED FOR $25,000

Charging false arrest, Alburn Steele of Mokena, started anew the long continued Lauffer matrimonial feud, when he filed suit for $25,000 damages against George Lauffer of Grant Park, in the Will County circuit court Saturday.

Steele was exonerated in May of the charge of alienating the affection of Florence Lauffer Steele, divorced wife of Lauffer, who is operator of a grain elevator at Grant Park.

Mrs. Lauffer obtained a divorce from her husband and later married Steele, who was once a hired man on the Lauffer farm. Lauffer brot a suit for $20,000 charging his former hired man with alienation of his wife's affections. Lauffer has also remarried.

Several controversies arose since the divorce over custody of the children, Alice and Adelaide Lauffer, according to the records in the case. At one time the children were taken from the Lauffer home and Lauffer charged Steele with kidnapping them, according to consul for the complainant.

Steele says in his bill that he was arrested last July and arranged before Justice of the peace C. H. Edison of Kankakee on a charge of kidnapping brot by Lauffer. On motion of the states attorney the cause was dropped.

Steele claims that injury to his name and credit because of the arrest warrant damages of $25,000.

Tinley Girls Club Has Treasure Hunt

Thru the courtesy of John Boeyer, who so kindly furnished the transportation to and from his beautiful woodland, Mrs. J. E. Swisher was able to surprise the members of the Niagatri Girls Club with a real treasure hunt last Saturday. When the girls arrived at the woods they noticed a sign which read "Treasure Hunt". Mrs. Swisher then explained that there were many more signs on the trees, thru the woods, each of which designated a treasure to be found near the spot. Printed on the last package was the order "Return to camp". It was a very happy and tired group of girls who gathered in a circle to open the packages. A prize was given to the girl who found the most treasures.

DAIRY COW SALE GOES OVER BIG WITH TOP PRICE $142

The dairy cattle sale held last Friday on the Cappel farm southwest of Mokena was well attended. There seemed to be a good demand for dairy cattle. The highest price was $142. Chas. "The Greatest American of His Day"

SIR WILLIAM JOHNSON, BARONET, 1765

JOHNSON HALL

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of Robert W. Chambers' spirited romances of Revolutionary New York, the first chapter opens with these words:

"The day Sir William died there died the greatest American of his day. Because, on that midsummer evening, His Excellency was still only a Virginia gentleman, not yet famous, and best known because of courage and sagacity displayed in the bloody business of Braddock."

"Indeed, all Americans then living, and who since have become famous, were little celebrated, excepting locally, on the day Sir William Johnson died. Few were known outside a single province; scarcely one among them had been heard of abroad. But Sir William was a world figure; a great constructive genius; the greatest landowner in North America; a wise magistrate, a victorious soldier, a builder of cities amid a wilderness; a redeemer of men."

"He was a Baronet of the British Realm; His Majesty's Superintendent of Indian Affairs for all North America. He was the only living white man implicitly trusted by the savages of this continent, because he never broke his word to them. He was, perhaps, the only representative of royal authority in the Western Hemisphere utterly believed in by the dishonest, tyrannical, and stupid pack of Royal Governors, Magistrates and lesser vermin that afflicted the colonies with the British plague."

"He was kind and great. All loved him. All mourned him. For he was a very perfect gentleman who practiced truth and honour and mercy; an unassuming and respectable man who loved laughter and gaiety and plain people."

"He saw the conflict coming which must drench the land in blood and dry with fire the blackened cinders."

"Torn betwixt loyalty to the King whom he had so tirelessly served, and loyalty to his country which he so passionately loved, it has been said that, rather than choose between King and Colony, he died by his own hand."

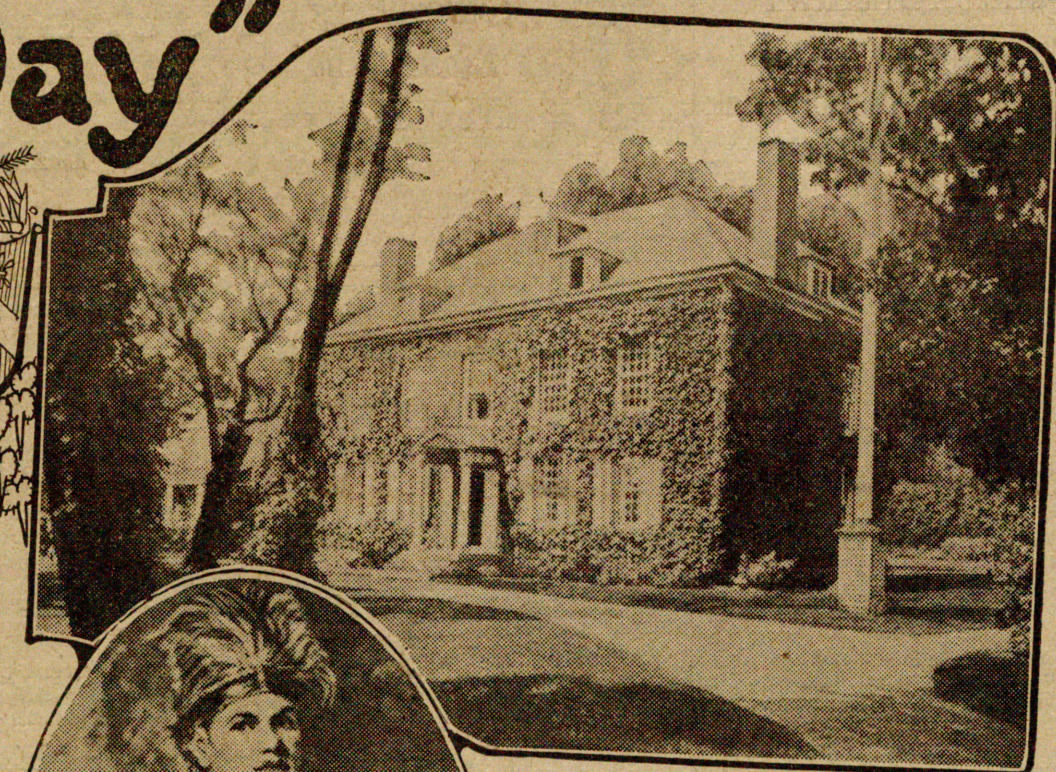

"But those who know him best know otherwise. Sir William Johnson died of a broken heart, in his great Hall at Johnstown, all alone."

Thus a novelist, one of those weavers of romantic tales, who frequently assign real persons roles in their fictional writings and interpret them as suits their fancy. But what of the historian, who deals only with facts? Would he endorse the novelist's estimate of the greatness of Sir William Johnson? The best answer to that is to read a recent biography of the man—"Johnson of the Mohawks—A Biography of Sir William Johnson, Irish Immigrant, Mohawk War Chief, American Soldier, Empire Builder," written by Arthur Pound in collaboration with Richard E. Day and published by the Macmillan company.

This biography represents the fruits of 25 years of work on Johnson manuscripts, letters, documents, etc., by Dr. Richard E. Day of the Library of the State of New York, who prepared them for official publication. Six volumes of 900 pages each already have been published and three more are partly finished. So the Pound-Day biography, based as it is upon this monumental piece of work, may safely be regarded as the final authority on Sir William Johnson. To read the words of the historians in it is to realize that there is no exaggeration in the words of Chambers, the novelist, for virtually every statement he makes can be backed up by documentary evidence which gives "Johnson of the Mohawks" its authority.

The life of Sir William Johnson is one of the great American romances. In 1733, William Johnson, a tall, rugged, handsome young Irishman, aged twenty-three, landed at Boston and proceeded to the "small, dull and dirty" city of New York. Here he was the guest of his uncle, the famous British admiral, Sir Peter Warren. There for a few months the young Irishman entered wholeheartedly into the social gaieties for which the New York of that period, and Sir Peter Warren's house especially, was noted. Then he proceeded by sloop up the Hudson to Albany and then by wagon to the Mohawk valley, where he was to take charge of a large tract of land which belonged to his uncle.

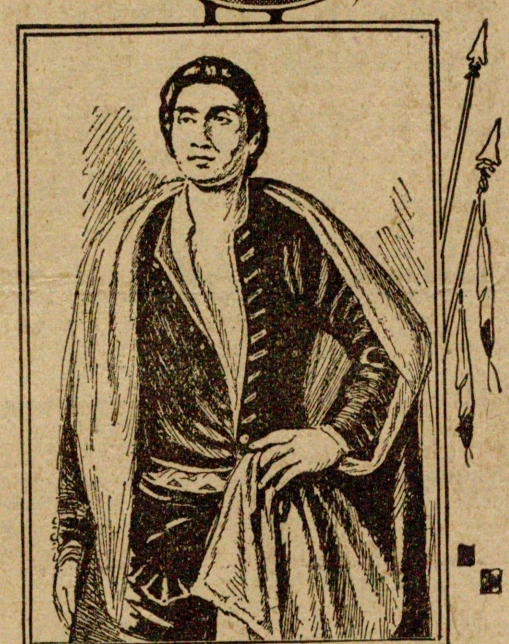

This body of 13,000 uncultivated acres lay along the south bank of the Mohawk river near what is now South Amsterdam. Within a year, with the help of several mechanics and a few settlers whom he had brought with him, young Johnson had surveyed the land, built a house, opened a general store and was bringing other settlers to the place. Attracted by his merchandise the Indians of the great Iroquois confederation, more especially the Mohawks, came to exchange their furs for the white man's goods, and within a few years William Johnson was one of the greatest traders in the colony with his operations extending far beyond the Mohawk valley.

From the beginning, the Irish immigrant treated his red neighbors fairly, a unique experience for them in their dealings with the English colonists, and they began to look to him as their special champion in their dealings with other whites. Adopted into the Mohawk tribe under the name of Warraghiyagey—"Chief Big Business," a fitting name for this energetic young merchant—he sat at their council fires, joined in their games and dances, learned their language, knew their folk ways, loved their women and mourned with them for their dead.

When the last French and Indian war broke out Johnson, the trader, the landowner, the councillor, blossomed out surprisingly as a military leader. Led by Johnson and his friend King Hendrick, the Mohawk chief, the colonial troops of New York and their Indian allies won a great victory over Baron Dieskau at Lake George. Today a magnificent monument, topped by the statues of King Hendrick and Johnson, "comrades forever in stone," overlooks the battlefield where the Indian chief fell and the colonial leader won the victory which established his fame and won for him a baronetcy and a purse of £5,000. Later while Wolfe was capturing Quebec and Amherst fighting his way toward Montreal, the former Irish immigrant, now Sir William Johnson, Bart., was winning another victory at Niagara and thus securing for Great Britain absolute assurance of control of the Middle West and Canada.

But no sooner was the danger from the French eliminated than a new one arose. The Indians in the West were restless at the prospect of what would happen to them, now that control of the continent had passed from their friends, the French, to their enemies, the English. So to Detroit went Sir William Johnson in 1761, there to hold a council, to exert much of the same influence over these tribes as he had exerted over the Iroquois and to postpone for a while the inevitable conflict which flamed out two years later in Pontiac's uprising. But again it was the strong hands on the Covenant chain which turned the scale. For "Sir William Johnson and his brothers by adoption managed to keep all but one of the Six Nations out of the most bitter Indian war the British fought in America" and so Pontiac was defeated.

Worn out from his arduous services on the frontier, Sir William declined to be considered for governor of New York. A year after his arrival in the Mohawk valley he had purchased for himself (thereby alienating his uncle, Sir Peter Warren) a tract of land on the north side of the Mohawk river where he later built Fort Johnson, near the present Amsterdam, N. Y. But after his return from the wars he built a new mansion for himself, Johnson Hall, in what is now Johnstown, N. Y. A settlement quickly sprang up around the Hall. Churches were built and schools—here he established probably the first free school in America—and missions for the Indians.

Life at Johnson Hall was on an expansive and expensive scale. Guests came from all parts of the world to enjoy the boundless hospitality of this American baronet. Rich wine and abundant food graced his table. His stables were filled with fine horses. Fox hunting with hounds brought sports were the order of the day. Always his Mohawk brethren haunted the place and once a year the Six Nations came trooping in for a council and a feasting which lasted for days. Never did he fail them in protecting them from land-grabbing of his own race.

Thus for more than a decade the former Irish immigrant boy ruled like a feudal baron over his little kingdom on American soil. But it was a kingdom in which the monarch ruled with wisdom and kindness and fair-dealing to all men. The end came on July 11, 1774.

Robert W. Chambers, in the novel previously referred to, has painted this unforgettable word-picture of the scene that day:

"His son, Sir John, killed a fine horse riding from Fort Johnson to the Hall. And arrived too late and all of a lather in the starlight."

"At the Hall the numerous household was all in a turmoil; and, besides Sir William's immediate family, there were a thousand guests—a thousand Iroquois Indians around the Hall, with whom Sir William had been holding fire-council."

"For he had determined to restrain his Mohawks, and to maintain tranquility among all the fierce warriors of the Six Nations, and so pledge the entire Iroquois Confederacy to an absolute neutrality in the imminence of this war betwixt King and Colony, which now seemed to be coming so rapidly upon us that already its furnace breath was heating restless savages to a fever."

"All that hot July day, though physically ill and mentally unhappy—and under a vertical sun with head uncovered—Sir William had spoken to the Iroquois with belts."

"The day's labour of that accursed council-fire ended at sunset; sachem and chief departed—tall spectres in the flaming west; there was a clash of steel at the guard-house as the guard presented arms; Mr. Duncan saluted the Confederacy with lifted claymore."

"Then an old man, bareheaded, alone, turned away from the covered council-fire; and an officer, seeing how feebly he moved, flung an arm about his shoulder."

"So Sir William came slowly to his great Hall, and slowly entered. And laid him down in his library on a sofa."

"And slowly died there while the sun was going down."

"Then the first star came out where, in the ashes of the July sunset, a pale rose tint lingered."

"But Sir William lay dead in his great Hall, all alone."

Go to Johnstown, N. Y., today and wander in the churchyard of old St. John's. There you will find a simple headstone upon which is engraved only this: "Sir William Johnson, Bart. 1715-1774."

"But when that stone dissolves under the slow kiss of Time," writes Pound, "a grateful people may consider gravely upon its successor this quotation from a Johnson letter: 'I thank Heaven I have ever thought my Self love a small Sacrifice to the public.'"

And his biographer sums up the story of the career of this "greatest American of his day" with these words: "The Revolution could proceed; America could proceed. The gate-keeper of the Mohawk had fought off the French, and tamed the Indians; and now, since he was dead, the gate to the West stood open."

Lesson for October 19

SIMEON AND ANNA: THE INSIGHT OF THE PURE IN HEART

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-39.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Being Glad for God's Best Gift.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Simeon and Anna See Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Know Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Wisdom Depends on Character.

The lesson title is somewhat misleading in that it implies that the insight of Simeon and Anna was due to their purity of heart, whereas it was due to the fact of the indwelling Holy Spirit. Those indwelt by the Spirit will be pure in heart, but not all the pure in heart have such insight.

1. Simeon (Luke 2:25-35).

1. His character (v. 25).

(1) He was just.

That is, honest and upright in all his dealings with men. We are not told what his occupation was, but we are assured that he was a man trusted by all who knew him. If he were a merchant, his customers got the kind of goods represented with full weight and measure. In spite of the corruptions of his time, he did not take advantage of his fellow men in business deals.

(2) Devout.

He was just because he was God-fearing. Many boast of their morality while unwilling to bow their knees to God in prayer.

(3) He looked for the Messiah.

God's word had promised that Christ should come. He believed in the truthfulness of that word. The same word that told of Christ's first coming tells of his second coming (Hebrews 9:28). While waiting for the Messiah, he kept faithfully discharging his duty. Intelligent looking for the coming of Jesus Christ means diligence in daily duties, not idly gazing into the heavens.

(4) The Holy Spirit was upon him.

This was the secret of his godly and practical living. The Christ-like life is only possible to those who are filled with the Holy Ghost.

2. His reward (vv. 26-28).

The Holy Spirit revealed unto him that he should see the Messiah before he died. At the appointed time the Spirit led him into the temple where Jesus to God. Simeon took him in his arms and blessed God. The most important event in every life is to see Christ. One has missed the greatest experience of life if he has not seen Christ.

3. Simeon's song (vv. 29-33).

This is the Nunc Dimittis sung by Christians since the Fifth century. A. D. Simeon was now ready to die because he had seen God's salvation. Salvation is in and through Christ's atonement on the cross. No one is ready to die until he has seen God's salvation which was wrought out on Calvary's cross.

4. Simeon's prophecy (vv. 34, 35).

(1) The meaning of Christ to the world (v. 34).

Everyone is affected by Christ's coming. His presentation to man either results in their salvation or condemnation. There is absolutely no neutral ground. Personal attitude toward him determines all.

(2) He shall be spoken against (v. 34).

This has been fulfilled in every generation since its utterance.

(3) Meaning to Mary (v. 35).

This began to be fulfilled when she was obliged to flee Egypt in order for Jesus to escape Herod's sword. It was an intimation of what the end would be when she clasped her child to her bosom. Her heart was pierced again and again as human hate swept against her son. Its culmination was reached when she stood below his cross.

11. Anna (Luke 2:36-39).

1. Her character (vv. 36, 37).

She was irreproachable. After a married life of only seven years, she had lived as a lonely widow for about eighty-four years, during which time she devoted herself to God. She was what Paul called "a widow indeed" (1 Tim. 5:5). During these long years she endured many trials and temptations, leading a life of self-denial for the sake of others. She was a woman of much prayer.

2. Her testimony (v. 38).

She gave thanks and spoke of him to all who were looking for redemption. She thus had fellowship with others who had this blessed hope. Though surrounded by wickedness, many were looking for the Messiah.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. They lunch together and recall their school days. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. The love-making progresses rapidly. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood.

Will was at the door, grinning at them, his mobile mouth twisted into a kind of sardonic look that he wore at times, and that made him like his father. He had a great deal of poise, Ernestine often thought, considering his youth and scanty advantages. Marriage had changed him very little. He was, perhaps, somewhat more inflammable, but he took Ernestine and the life with her most naturally and without self-consciousness.

They went on to Pastano's, entered an unmarked doorway and climbed broad wooden steps with double doors at the top which opened upon light, music, heat and the sound of happy voices.

The big room was airy, its excellent ventilation a surprise to Ernestine, and an important factor in every one's pleasure and good appetite. Mr. Poole came to meet them, and Ernestine gave him her hand and her nicest schoolgirl smile. She wished Mrs. Bennett had not said anything to her about this man. She did not have to heed any warnings except those her husband gave her!

Following Mr. Poole among the tables, Ernestine thought about the many things Will had told her of this man, until she felt that she knew him perfectly. His remarkable gifts, his value to his paper, his carelessness of himself, his small vanities and prejudices, his indolence and drunkenness and his great charm, she knew. He was as natural and straightforward with every one as a child with other children. Yet he possessed also the authority and autocratic manner of the man of established reputation. He drew Ernestine's hand within the curve of his arm, and led her to a table reserved for their party.

All the places were filled except theirs, and the men rose to greet Ernestine. There was only one other woman, Mrs. Wiston, the wife of the syndicate editor of the Sun, a small beautiful woman with the face of a siren who can never forget her role. She had been married twice before she had met Wiston, and Ernestine knew that back in New England were the wife and child Wiston had set aside for her. Ernestine was conscious of the indignation common to married women against such an impostor.

Wiston himself, a tall academic man with a ribbon to his glasses, Ernestine had met at the office, and John Tucker, called Tommy by every one, who was Will's rival for honors in the art room. The third man who was presented to her Ernestine did not know and she failed to catch his name. He was a small powerful looking individual, with a dark mustache, bright gray eyes and a vain and elaborate manner. The other two men, Underwood and Harrison, were from the Sun staff, and happy to be at any party, any time, any place.

They all sat down, Mr. Poole with one of the women on either side, and Tommy Tucker next to Ernestine, the pompous little man next to Mrs. Wiston, with the others grouped about the big table. Ernestine by now had forgotten her self-consciousness and became radiantly happy. She wished Will were beside her. She was only a half, and Will was the other half, and he ought always to be beside her, breathing as she breathed, turning as she turned. The idea delighted her, and she laughed at herself but felt still a deep joy in their unity.

Mr. Poole turned to Ernestine and told her softly that her youth and beauty were sweeter than sweet night itself. He took his glass in his hand.

"And more intoxicating," he said, "than this for which I have wasted half my life and most of my talents."

Ernestine, looking up in his kind face, knew instantly that in spite of his flowery words, and in spite of Mrs. Bennett's conventional fears, this great man had no predatory impulses toward her. He knew that she was deeply in love with Will. But to watch her, to speak to her, to listen to her voice, gave him pleasure. It was all he would ever want of her. Her instinct in this matter proved true, during the years of Will's association with Mr. Poole.

"And what have you two young pieces of impudence been doing since last I saw you?"

"We have dined in state at mamma's," said Ernestine, smiling mischievously. "Will missed the significance of it entirely. Papa has, under duress, forgiven him. He offered Will a job in his office."

"And what does Will say?"

"He didn't even pay any attention to it. He just said that he was satisfied with the job he had, thanks just the same, and went on talking to mamma."

Mr. Poole laughed with delight. "Doesn't he know what papa wants?"

"I don't know whether he does or not. But anyhow, papa knows that, now he has decided to forgive Will. Will doesn't intend to let it make any difference. Papa really would like to let us struggle along. He feels pretty disappointed in me. But mamma can't bear it. She is determined to take care of us, whether we will or no."

"But how can she, if Will does not change his employment?"

Ernestine's face grew firm. "She can't. I won't let her. I've made up my mind to have nothing but what Will can give me. I don't mind being poor."

"You must resist poverty," Mr. Poole said. "It is the deadly enemy of marriage."

Ernestine's small face was scornful. Poverty was not so black as it was painted, she observed. He looked at her.

"You do not believe me? Wait, then, and see."

"But we are poor now. It's fun to be poor."

"You—poor!" His amazement was so genuine that Ernestine looked at him in surprise. "My darling child," he reasoned with her, "you don't know what the word means. You two—still in the flush of first love, without children, without a house to burden you, without a responsibility! One bed will do for both of you, one room will hold two hearts together. You are well, you are eager, you are fed and clothed and housed. You have a trunk full of pretty clothes, an adoring mamma begging to do things for you. You do not know the cold and odious breath of poverty at all. I could show you its dark face: slums, little children with great heads and emaciated bodies, houses held together by strings—shambles! I'll show you pale girls, and prostitution, and bare shelves, and empty cupboards, and pride bent double. Lack is a cruel witch. Pray that you may never know her."

"Yet you just told me to wait!"

"Ah, but that was nonsense. Life will never be cruel to you."

They ate the excellent food put before them, and talked, the men arguing among themselves about a technicality in some one's work, Will and Underwood and Mr. Wiston deep in it, Mr. Poole and Tommy competing for Ernestine's attention. Presently Tommy was drawn into the men's talk, and Mr. Poole leaned close to Ernestine and became very confidential.

"Will tells me you are going to have a child. I think that is the last perfection. I always knew that he was gifted, but his marriage with you has established the certainty of his future. Such things are not accidents. He is the chosen of the gods, or one of their finest gifts would not be his. He has all the elements of success. And a wife and children will do the forging."

Ernestine's cheeks burned. She could not understand how Will could have told his still precious secret to Mr. Poole. But she exercised great self-command to be quiet and responsive to him. He went on praising Will, and assuring her of the brightness of his future, until, after a little, she forgot her confusion and told him her own feelings about Will.

The party grew very gay, and Ernestine joined in the general happiness. Without warning the tight little man with the powerful shoulders was on his feet. He bowed to Ernestine, and he bowed around the room, and everywhere hands began to clap and there were shouts of joyous approval at sight of him.

With a gesture indescribably comely, he held up his hand for silence and got it instantly. Standing so, his chest pushed out like a pouter pigeon's, his body rocking back on his heels, his napkin in his hand, which he flourished from time to time, he began to sing.

It was Siegfried's cry of joy, when he passed through the flames and found the sleeping Brunhilde. Ernestine recognized it, as she recognized the man. He was Mostane, one of the world's greatest tenors. And she had criticized his manner! But now, all else was swept away, and she lived only through her ears, on which fell each perfect note. She knew in delightful anticipation what his golden voice would do next, and her heart soared with his voice.

He stopped abruptly, rocked a moment on his heels and then gently, softly, poignantly he sang without accompaniment:

Still wie die Nacht
Tief wie das Meer
Sol deine Liebe sein.

The tears rained down Ernestine's cheeks. He sat down in a storm of excited applause. Ernestine could not stop crying. She leaned on Will's shoulder, for he came and sat beside her and put his arm about her. When at last she could breathe steadily she rose and went around the table to Mostane and took his fat face in her two hands and kissed him.

There was a cheer from all the tables, and Will gleamed at her with approval for her spontaneity.

"Nothing else was adequate," declared Mr. Poole.

The hours passed in a trance. The patronage in the dining room changed, grew noisier, more turbulent. Girls came and went on the stage, and danced and sang, and twinkled pretty feet, and flicked bare knees. It was all an unreal blending of sight and sound and color, and Ernestine's heart was far away, in some lonely space with Will. Her being still trembled with that last swelling note. Dimly in her mind she felt an awakening of artistic comprehension, a spiritual understanding of the strength and power of perfect performance. Will had latent in him some such force, but it was far from impulses to such finished authority. Her thought was not that clear, but groping.

It was time to go home, and Ernestine wanted Will to take her away from the others. But she saw that Mr. Poole was not himself at all any longer. Will always took him home, from the office, from such affairs as this, to his flat. Ernestine felt that she could not bear to be parted from Will tonight.

She became conscious of a man standing behind her, a little to one side, regarding her gravely, quietly. She glanced up at him but did not know him. He was a huge man, with a great dark head and clear dark skin. He wore a sack suit, and his narrow tie glittered with a ruby of enormous size, set in a gold circle. On one of his big brown hands, which were covered with coarse black hair, was another such gem. Ernestine remembered with a feeling of faintness all the wild stories she had heard about Pastano's place being so disorderly. Will, at least, was sober, as he always was.

Mr. Poole now saw the stranger, greeted him and called him to the table.

"And this is Mrs. Todd, my young friend's wife. You know Will, of course, and the others. Ernestine, this is Ruby Pastano, jewel merchant, ward boss, and the owner of this dive. A bad man—a terrible man. Shake hands with him."

Mr. Poole was enjoying himself and looked up at Pastano with glee. Mr. Pastano did not smile. He still fixed on Ernestine that queer solemn look. He bowed above her.

"Sit down, Ruby, sit down!" commanded Mr. Poole thickly, and motioned for a waiter to bring a chair, which was produced instantly.

Mr. Pastano sat down between Mr. Poole and Ernestine, and she felt his gravity spreading about the table, so that all were a little quieted.

"This is my birthday," Ernestine explained graciously. "I am twenty-one years old today, and Mr. Poole was kind enough to have a party for me. Now that you have come, it is more charming."

"Your voice—" he said, his own tone soft and silky. "Where are you born?"

She told him, naively, the address of her mother's house.

Odd Beliefs Take Hold of Salt-Water Sailors

Sailors and superstition have always been closely allied writes Stanley Paul in Pearson's Weekly. Sailors attribute many virtues even to the saltiness of sea water. In Brittany the fisherfolk believe that the best treatment for a cold in the head is to drink a glass of sea water in the morning and evening. In various parts of the world sea water is much used as a lotion in cases of local inflammation, stiffness of the joints, and spine disease. Many old sailors still maintain that the sound of the waves foretells certain events. Thus, on the coast of Cork, when the waves are producing an extraordinary roaring noise it is taken as predicting the death of a great man. There are still apparently sailors who believe in modern Jonahs—that a tempest is due to the presence on board ship of some one who has something on his conscience. The story is told of a Russian captain who quite recently went to sea without paying his debts. A terrible gale arose, and the vessel got into such difficulties that the captain saw no other way out than that of throwing the box containing his cash into the sea. It nearly broke his heart as he dropped his every penny over the side, but the storm abated almost immediately.

Organ Made Famous by

Bach Is Rededicated

The famous Schnitzer organ in the Church of St. James (Jacobi-Kirche) at Hamburg, Germany, has been put in order and rededicated with a concert of works by Johann Sebastian Bach. This organ is the only one in existence upon which the great master played.

Bach was so entranced by the beauty of the organ's tone that he applied in 1720 for the post of organist in the Jacobi-Kirche. He played once on trial, and so pleased the church committee that his appointment seemed to be certain, but a competitor who made a contribution to the church was chosen instead.

Old Colonial Warfare

The Penobscot expedition was commanded by Colonel Westbrook. Its purpose was the capture of Father Rase. Ridpath says: "In order to prevent Father Rase's flight to French territory, Westbrook, in March, 1723, led the party up the Penobscot." On March 9 they arrived at Old Town, above the present site of Bangor. Westbrook's party attacked the Indian fort. When morning came nothing remained of the settlement except ashes and embers of the ruined building."

Whole Volume in Her Short, Pungent Comment

An anecdote about Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, is going the rounds of New York. Mr. Dreiser has recently written the story of his love affairs; beautiful girls, it seems, have bothered him to death for 30 years, and his successes have surpassed Don Juan's. All this makes the anecdote very interesting.

A pretty girl—so the anecdote runs—sat in the lounge of a New York hotel reading Mr. Dreiser's story, while two men stood in talk near her. The two men separated, and then one of them came over to the girl. He knew her. He was a magazine editor.

"Do you know who that chap was who just left me?" he said.

"No," said she. "Who was it?"

"Theodore Dreiser."

The girl put down her magazine, hurried to the door, and gave Mr. Dreiser a long, careful look. Then she came back and sank into her chair again.

"Merciful heavens!" she said.—Detroit Free Press.

Proudly Mrs. Missen exhibited the new baby to the first family gathering since its arrival.

"What are you going to call her?" asked one grandmother.

"I like her to be called Ada, after her mother," suggested the child's father.

"I think Geraldine is sweet," murmured the mother, ignoring her husband's suggestion.

"Esmeralda has haunted me ever since I read it in a book," chimed in a maiden aunt.

"To my way of thinking, Feodora is classically beautiful," asserted the other grandmother.

The father of the child had sat meekly and quietly through this discussion, but could stand it no longer.

"Excuse me," he said. "We're not trying to get a name for a cigar, but for a child!"

Insulted

While a guest in Pasadena, the crown prince of Bulgaria was taken to the Huntington gardens and art gallery. His highness greatly admired the work of art on display, but it was plain to see that the outdoor gardens, which only California possesses at that time of year, were the chief center of interest.

Pausing before a bed of early annuals, the prince asked of an attendant:

"Do those belong to the aster family?"

"Those Astors don't own everything, sir," replied the guide. "This whole place is part of the Huntington estate."

ORLAND PARK

Orland Park folks have been treated to fine, luscious strawberries that rival the Florida crop, as the result of a fine fall crop of berries now being harvested by H. P. Luther on his farm west of Orland. Mr. Luther has been selling the berries nearly every day and has a bigger demand than he can supply. He set out over 2000 plants of ever bearing strawberries last spring, but the grubs destroyed quite a number of the plants. It is certainly a treat to be able to have fresh strawberry short cake at this time of the year.

Public Service Erects

New Service Hdqtrs.

A new service headquarters, costing approximately $750,000, has recently been placed under construction by the Public Service of Northern Illinois, on a 63-acre tract owned by that company in the Skokie Valley between Northbrook and Glencoe, about a quarter of a mile south of Dundee Road on the new Skokie Boulevard. This project will provide a centralized operating headquarters for the various departments of the company serving the north shore suburban territory. A two-story building, to be completed next spring, covering about three acres of floor area, will house about 200 employees.

The entire service headquarters, including the garages, shops, switch tracks and storage yards which are to be a part of the development will provide employment for upwards of 400 people, according to officials of the company. Garage facilities for 150 cars and a large employees' lunch room are also a part of the plans. The expectations of the Public Service Company for future development at this location are indicated by the acquisition of the large tract of land which is sufficient to provide headquarters eventually for as many as two thousand workers.

The building now under course of construction was designed by H. V. von Holst of Chicago. It will be a grey brick structure with limestone trim. An attractive system of exterior decorative lighting, embodied as an integral part of the architectural scheme, will lend a beautiful effect to the completed building at night. A machine switching arrangement for handling telephone calls from customers calling the company from any of the north shore towns served will be an added feature of the facilities for improved service to customers which the new headquarters will provide.

The completion of this project will make the fourth centralized operating headquarters of a similar nature established by the Public Service Company in the large territory outside Chicago in which the company supplies electricity and gas. Others are located at Waukegan, Maywood and Harvey.

Mrs. A. C. Hall and daughter, Mrs. Minnie Nebeker who is here from Salt Lake City, Utah, entertained at a kitchen shower in the A. E. Wachter home Monday evening in honor of Miss Francis Wachter and her approaching marriage to Mr. Willis Hall.

The home was lovely in pink crepe paper decorations. The dining room table was beautiful with a centerpiece of pink crepe paper resembling a basket of flowers with a silver paper heart shaped handle. Places were marked with a miniature sprinkling can tilted to water a small flower which was beside the guest's name. This was also made of pink and blue crepe paper the hand work of Mrs. Nebeker, as was also the pink crepe paper parol above the table in the den, which was denoting a shower in the shape of silver paper streamlets which fell gently upon the many beautiful and useful gifts to the bride.

The guest list included friends and relatives. Bunco was the evening's diversion and prizes were won by Mrs. Albert Hentsch and Miss Dorothy Hall who in turn presented them to the honored guest.

Refreshments were served later in the evening and the color scheme of pink and white was again carried out.

This coming Saturday evening at 7 o'clock the wedding will take place in the home of the bride.

WM. D. MEYER

Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Cook County

I was born in Chicago in 1892. My father was born in Holland. My mother was born in Chicago, of Irish extraction. I am one of eight children. My father, for thirty-five years, was employed as a motorman by the Chicago Surface Lines. Due to large family it was necessary for me to render any financial help possible as a boy and young man.

I started to caddy at local golf clubs at ten years of age and worked my way through high school and college. I graduated from grammar school, high school where I won a scholarship to college from which I was graduated with a B. A. Degree. I have always participated in various athletics, particularly baseball, basketball and golf.

On leaving college I was employed by the International Harvester Company in their accounting department. I continued my studies at night, specializing in accountancy, for two years.

Letters to the Editor

TO THE EDITOR:-

I was, to say the least, surprised to see a communication in your paper last week with my name signed beneath it.

You may be interested to know that I did not write the letter nor did I sign it.

Geo. H. Blessing.

Editor's Note: Mr. Blessing has shown me his signature and I am convinced his name was signed by some one else.

In the future I hope that persons writing in, will sign their own names. It is bad taste, to say the least, to use another's.

There is a correction to be made in my statement last week. The printer misspelled Rollison's name making it appear that my statement was verified by "Robinson."

We are very sorry that Mr. Blessing has been embarrassed by the publication of the letter which he did not write.

Roy G. Andrews.

KIDDIE'S BLOCK TRAFFIC

Starting Wednesday and each afternoon after that, crowds of kiddies gathered around Grill's windows to marvel at the "10c store" line of novelty to the smaller youngsters. It is said that the entire supply of Gaz-zos was exhausted the first day.

ST. LUKE'S BOARD MEETS

The board of trustees and elders of St. Luke's Union church met Monday at the home of R. K. Cumming. The usual business was handled and refreshments served.

tary of War, Major General Robert C. Davis said:

"Captain Meyer was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross May 30th, 1918, for extraordinary heroism in action while commanding his platoon during an attack by the enemy on April 6th, 1918. He took effective measures before and during the attack to defeat the enemy and handled his men well under fire until the injury which resulted in the loss of his right hand. He refused assistance and walked thru the enemy's barrage to a dressing station. He objected to being taken to the rear till he knew the outcome of the attack. By his brave example he inspired his men to drive off the enemy who did not reach our trenches. He was also awarded the Croix De Guerre with Gilt Star by the French Government for his actions on April 6th, 1918."

Returning to civil life I was handicapped to continue my previous occupation and went to Montana and Wyoming and filed a homestead claim. Returning to Chicago I studied law at the University of Chicago for one year and then returned to the International Harvester Company filling various positions preparatory to sales work. Resigned from their employ to associate myself in the insurance business with McKay & Poague.

My first association in politics was in 1923 when I was elected President of the "Dever for Mayor Ex-Service Men's League" and during my association with this cause I decided to run for alderman of the Eighth Ward. I was elected and have been re-elected on three other occasions and now am a member of the City Council from this ward. My record in the City Council has at all times been acceptable to the press of Chicago as well as to the Municipal Voters' League and other organizations who make endorsements for political offices.

I am now alderman of the Eighth Ward.

Three fumbles by Midlothian in the first quarter gave the Clippers a twelve point lead. In the first quarter Len Nelson of the Demons fumbled allowing Baker of the Clippers to recover and three plays Klienmann on a fake play through guard smashed through for the first touchdown of the game.

Midlothian fumbled frequently only once recovering their ball.

The second touchdown was also directly responsible to a fumble by Nelson in the latter part of the first quarter which was recovered by Sangler of the Clippers and in eight plays crossed the goal for the second touchdown making the score 12-0.

Both teams battled back and forth in the second and third quarters. Midlothian at no time threatened to score.

The Clippers scored a safety on Nelson in the second quarter.

The final touchdowns and the one point after touchdown came in the final quarter.

G. Edger (Bud) Robinson, Brisse, Devine and Bihlmayer were the outstanding players on Demons.

J. Stevenson turned in a nice attack, much to the disgust of the Clippers.

The Clippers presented an impregnable line and a smooth running backfield.

The Demons showed weakness in running play and their pass attack could not be used to any decided advantage.

Brissey, Capt. of the Demons will be out of the line-up for a few weeks due to a fractured rib.

The Demons play at home next Sunday Oct. 19. Their friendly warriors on the Gridiron will be the "South Side Comets" of Blue Island. The players are expecting you to come out and watch the home team play on our home grounds. Be a booster, be present at the Legion field next Sunday Oct. 19, at 2:30.

Schools

Len Small School

The second grade is to have a Halloween party a week from Thursday. Children will make their own decorations and hats.

The fourth grade pupils and their teacher, Miss Byfield, appreciate very much the lovely gift of library books donated by Catherine, Charles and John MacLean.

St. Christopher School

Children made posters to show the hazard of fire and how to prevent it. Several pupils wrote essays on fire prevention.

Fire drill practiced several times. A new item added to fire drill, row call.

Program on Friday, Oct. 10, 1930 Pageant: "Prevention Goes Marching On."

Characters: Fire, Minnie Kot. Fire Prevention, Martha Prather. Flamelets, Dorothy Shaw, Rita White, Wanda Kot, Mary Johnson, Mary Ann Kloc and Helen Meenan.

Children: Wanda Kulpa, Margaret Roe, Helen Walsh.

The pageant was given out of doors and enjoyed by all the children. All did their parts well. Much credit is due to the eight grade girls and especially to Helen Walsh who worked so faithfully to make this pageant a success.

After the pageant Paul Schwaighart gave an informal talk on the havoc which has been caused by fire in the past.

The pupils at St. Christopher have all resolved to be more cautious and to do all they can in the future to prevent fires.

Robert Andrews had his tonsils removed during the past week and was absent from school. He returned on Tuesday.

OUR INVITATION

This week the MIDLOTHIAN MESSENGER invited Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sagadin to attend the Lyric theatre, Blue Island as its guest.

Last week about a dozen people solved the puzzle on the back page and were given tickets to the theatre.

Bremen Township Health Topics

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.
Rural Nursing Service of Cook Co.

The dental clinic at Oak Forest will be four years old this week. Many no doubt, will remember when we started doing dental work for the school children in a little shack temporarily set up in the east side of the Len Small school. We operated in the shack for about thirty days until it became too cold to work there longer; then Anton J. Cermak gave us permission to use the dental room in the Oak Forest Infirmary.

Over 700 children have received dental treatment at this clinic since then. These children were from Bremen and neighboring townships. This may look like a large number of children to be cared for, but it is just about one out of every ten who need this service; and we hope that the first increase in service the county gives us, when the much talked of prosperity arrives, will be an increase in dental service for the schools.

Oak Forest Inmate

Killed by "Hit and Run" Driver

Arthur Hartstein, 21, an Oak Forest inmate, was struck and killed by a car at 155th and Cicero ave., at 6:30 Friday evening as he was walking on Cicero. The driver of the death car escaped; accounts differ as to the make of car, some witnesses asserting that it was a Ford and others a Cadillac. Although county police scoured the surrounding territory, the car could not be found.

The deceased was from 2020 N. Spaulding av., Chicago, and had been a patient at the institution for several years. The inquest was held at the institution on Saturday morning; the finding was "death from skull fracture, hemorrhage and shock."

P. T. A. NOTES

The P. T. A. meeting was held at the Len Small School Tuesday eve. There was a very good attendance; the meeting night was changed to the second Monday of each month. Mrs. Eleanor Clarke and Mrs. P. M. Wenstrand sang. Mr. Entrop spoke on fire prevention.

It was decided to cooperate in every way possible with the Lions club for dedication ceremonies of the new school.

Visitors at the meeting were Mrs. Chloe Sicker who is president of the Forest Ridge P. T. A. and Mrs. Koppmen.

Woman Driver Has Narrow Escape in Auto Crash

Mrs. Martha Bauer of Clarendon Hills appeared before Judge Thomas Stodd of Markham Wednesday on a charge of reckless driving. According to police, she went through a stop sign at 159th st., and Dixie and was sideswiped by a car driven by Stanley T. Gross of 5205 S. Ashland ave., on Sunday of last week. Mrs. Bauer had several children in the back seat of the car at the time of the accident.

PRIZE SHOOT AT GUN CLUB

The Blue Park Gun Club had a genuine field day on Sunday the 12th. A dozen prizes were given to four classes of shooters. The winners of each class had the choice of the prizes and also a $5 gold piece.

They were C. Kindberg who won a musical ash tray. Wm. Bohr also won an ash tray. Mrs. W. M. Meyers won a nice electric lamp as also did Fred J. Koehn of Schreiber Bros Hardware store at Blue Island.

Second prizes D. H. Tesman won a bronze jewel case. Mr. Rowley and Mr. F. P. Stewart each won a bronze ash tray.

Third prizes were won by George Rust who won a comfit dish. Mr. Innes took a bronze letter rack. C. C. Brock a pear handled silver spoon and Mr. Smith a green bronze book rack.

This was one of the most successful days the club has had and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

A nice lunch was served with real home made pies and cakes under the capable care of Mrs. Winfield Roosen and Mrs. Leonard G. Ames.

The debate "War Can be Abolished" given by the Epworth League of the Oak Forest Community M. E. church which was held Sunday evening was a great success according to those who attended.

There was a large crowd, the church being almost filled. The negotiation side won. Judges were the officers of the sub-district of the Epworth League.

Oak Forest Man Arrested for Wife Beating

Deputies Leppin and Leo of the County police were called to Oak Forest at 9:30 Sunday evening on the report that Leonard LeBlake, 159th and Laramie, was beating his wife and babies; his wife was said to have been beaten unconscious. He was booked for assault and battery and trial set before Judge Synakiewicz of Blue Island on Tuesday.

Supplemental Assessments for Markham

After a public hearing, the board of local improvements of the village of Markham passed supplemental assessments on jobs No. 1 (sewer) and No. 56443 (water). The supplemental on water will be $40,986.68 and on No. 56443 will be $27,377.46.

Attorney John C. Lewie explained that the original assessment passed by a previous board, left a shortage, as the contractor's bid was almost as high as the total spread, leaving collectors fees, engineers and attorneys fees, interest and other charges unprovided for.

The entire matter has been hanging fire for sometime, as the contractor, Peter Kruze, had to make repairs and alterations before certificates of final cost and completion were granted. The cost of these repairs were met by the contractor. The territory that is affected is about three-quarters of a mile square, located east of the Dixie highway.

As no bids were received for side walks east of the Dixie highway (Markham No. 11) it was decided to re-advertise for bids.

It appears that vegetation in Markham is both abundant and hardy, for it was stated that weeds were raising the sidewalks in the east end of the village. And there are so many bees in the prairie that no one can be persuaded to drive horses through the weeds to cut them.

J. F. Entrop Gives Fire Prevention Talk

The following address was given by J. F. Entrop at the P. T. A. meeting Tuesday night:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen of the P. T. A.: Our chief has been requested to give a short talk on Fire Prevention but as he is a doer instead of a speech maker he has pushed the talking part of the job over to me as you all know a good Fire Chief orders the work done and sees that the job is well done and our Jake is a good fire chief."

"Now we are into our fall and winter season and the season of our worst fires the most of which can be prevented if you people will be careful and use a little caution. First you will be storing your summer clothing away so search all pockets for matches as field mice have a habit of making nests in clothing and they will gnaw on a match and in a short while the fire siren blows and so good night to sleep and home."

"Another quick way of setting fire to your home is to start your fire with damp wood and kerosene and be sure to throw plenty of oil in the supposed to be out stove as this is good for keeping doctors and firemen working."

"In burning rubbish either dig a hole or use a receptacle thereby eliminating the danger of a quick raising wind of spreading fire in dry grass and endangering surrounding property."

"Never wrap up your polishing clothes and put them away after cleaning and polishing your furniture with any polish that contains kerosene and a great many polishes do, as any oil or chemical will set fire to themselves if wrapped tight. A great many people have a habit of storing dry grass, excelsior and other combustible materials in their garages not thinking that when they start their car that hot carbon and flame shoots from their exhaust pipe and is liable to set fire."

"Always be sure and check the drafts on your heating system before retiring for the night or going out. It is the best if only one person takes care of this as it is easy to think some one else has attended to this."

"If you have vacant lots close to your house or other buildings that have high weeds on them you have a fire hazard close at hand as a cigarette butt carelessly tossed in them, will set it afire. So notify the fire chief and he will arrange with you to eliminate this hazard."

"Now in closing the chief and his men ask you all to cooperate with them and report any hazard you may know of and if you have heard the siren blows and hear an auto horn in back of you give the right of way as quickly as possible as it is a fireman trying to get to a fire and he is of no use to the chief till he gets there and minutes count a great deal in time of fire. I thank you."

LIONS MEET MONDAY

Midlothian Lions will meet at the Legion hall Karlov ave. and 147th st., on Monday evening. If the entertainment committee is as successful as it was at the last meeting it will be well worth every Lion's time to attend.

Special Meet Tonight For Village Board

An adjourned meeting of the board of local improvements and the board of trustees of Midlothian will be held tonight at the Woman's club. Last night there was an open meeting of residents of the McIntosh subdivision to consider drainage for that district. Tonight the board will consider the results of that meeting and take what action it considers advisable.

At the same meeting the board will consider the building ordinance, which was taken up early this summer, at the urgent request of the East End Development association.

The board of trustees meeting on Tuesday decided to bill Glenn Payne $25 for the services of the fire department as his home was located outside the limits. Trustee Kries reported that 20 minutes elapsed before water was available and asked that the fire chief be notified when water was shut off the mains.

Discussing the need of a road to the new school, on 146th st. and Harding ave., it was said that special assessments were the only method whereby new roads could be built, but this was impractical. Kreis estimated that it would cost from $1000 to $1500 to put stone on these roads. It was suggested that grading be placed at the entrances. The Rock Island was asked to widen the culvert under the spur track to prevent floods. Attorney Francis A. Harper was asked to draw up an ordinance to fix the hours of voting in elections.

Trustees Jebbens asked for a report from the police committee, saying that there had been none for some time. Trustee Burns agreed to have one at the next meeting.

The street renaming ordinance reported previously in this paper was passed as read before with the exception that 40th court will be called Keystone ave. instead of Kominski ave. The officers of the fire department were approved by the board.

H. W. Elmore Starts Selling Drive Sunday

Apparently H. W. Elmore is one of those business men who are not frightened by the depression. On Sunday he started an advertising and selling campaign on his Markham property at 159th and Kedzie. About 550 prospects were attracted and from $15,000 to $20,000 worth of real estate sold.

The local sales manager states that Mr. Elmore is anxious to develop his Markham subdivision and that his activities there will be the "making" of the village. The transportation problem is not bothering them, as they point out that transportation follows population.

No immediate building program is contemplated, as the company finances homes, but is not primarily interested in building.

Frank Wiswell Chosen President of Firemen's Club

Frank Wiswell was elected president of the Midlothian Firemen's club, in place of William Flaws, resigned, at their regular meeting on Thursday night. Ed. C. Higgins and Henry Fredholm were chosen as trustees and Theodore Jenkins as sergeant-at-arms.

Friday night the firemen worked until midnight moving and connecting up the siren. The change was made in the belief that the value of sound would be greater in the village. In the old location it could be heard better at a distance than close at hand.

A. A. Terry Takes Over Parenti Stand

Saturday the refreshment stand at 147th and Crawford will be reopened by A. A. Terry. He will handle gasoline and oil, and a line of soft drinks and candies.

Mrs. Terry, who is well-known for her excellent cooking, will manage "Terry's Place". Service will include light lunches as well as regular meals. The hall upstairs will be available for private parties.

SPECIAL SCHOOL MEETING

A special meeting of the school board of district 143 will be held Wednesday evening at the Len Small School.

Those who have not inspected the interior of the new Midlothian Public school have a big surprise in store for them. So far everything seems to have been built in the most modern and artistic manner, particularly the heating and ventilating system. When complete Midlothian should have one of the finest schools in the county.

WHITEHEAD CASE CONTINUED

Attorney John Whitehead of Harvey, involved in an auto crash last week, came before Justice Heintz on Friday, but was continued to October 25.

WILKINSON CASE CONTINUED

Lucyle Wilkinson's case came up before Judge Friend of the Criminal court on Tuesday, but was continued to the early part of the week.

Oak Forest Girl Wins Thrift Prize

Lorraine Wolf, 12 years old in the seventh grade of the Arbor Park school, district 145 received third prize of $15 in the Cook County Thrift Contest. This is a new contest started this year, but will be held each year from now on. All the school children of Cook County who have had any kind of a business project are eligible to compete in it. The director of each of the 7 divisions chooses a champion from his division to go down town and tell his story to a committee of seven prominent people chosen by Mr. Tobin. Miss McClaughry chose Lorraine as representative from Division 6 and she was third highest in the entire county. Lorraine made some of her money by working in the general store operated by her parents. She received 3 cents commission on every dollar's worth of merchandise she sold. During the summer months she also operated a refreshment stand next to the store and as this was harder work she received five cents on every dollar sold. She had to carry all her merchandise out in the morning and back at night. She also received 50 cents a week for helping her mother with the housework, but says she would rather work at the refreshment stand as she is her own boss and there is more excitement outside. One of the biggest things Lorraine did with her money was to purchase a radio for the family on the installment plan, paying $8 down and $5.52 per month. The radio cost $74.24 and the family received much enjoyment from it. Lorraine is just an ordinary girl who has a very good health record and like to read books, when she can find time from her many duties to do so. She has three years perfect attendance record at Sunday school. During the month of August she took a motor trip with her parents to visit relatives in Wyoming.

Head camp officers of the Modern Woodmen of America won a victory in the McLean county Circuit court at Bloomington, when Judge Edward Barry declined to issue a writ of mandamus to compel them to submit their new life insurance rate plan to a vote of the membership. His opinion held that the special statute governing societies having a membership in the state of 75,000 or more, is unconstitutional because it constitutes class legislation. He held that no distinction should be made between societies on the basis of their membership.

With a desire to relieve county governments of financial difficulties, the state association of county officers in session at Springfield adopted a resolution sponsoring a new schedule making fees higher for service in offices operating under the fee system and another asking that the state assume full payment of mother's pensions and blind pensions and the salaries of state's attorneys and county judges. Both propositions will be submitted to the fifty-seventh general assembly.

Fish are being shipped from Beardstown in carload lots, two carloads having been sent recently to Boston and one to New York. Two recent hauls which are exceedingly great hauls.

These catches were made in the bay and at Wood slough near Beardstown.

Station WTAX, formerly broadcasting from Streator, swept aside legal tangles and started operation from Hotel Abraham Lincoln October 6 with an exceptionally strong opening day program. Governor Louis L.
Emmerson was the chief speaker, outlining in his remarks the growth of Springfield and congratulating owners of the station. Telegrams of congratulations came from as far east as New Jersey, while Milwaukee was the furthest point north and South Carolina the southern limit.

That the University of Illinois needs a great art museum to enable it to become a contributor to the esthetic life of the state is an assertion that was made by the new president, Harry W. Chase, in an address before a thousand Illinois graduates in Chicago. "I know of no better investment," he said, "for anyone who wants to raise the level of art appreciation in Illinois than to put an art museum on the campus of the University of Illinois." He also listed other needs, such as strengthening the Chicago departments (college of medicine), enlargement of the college of education's relations with the public schools, revision of undergraduate instruction methods and creation of more loan funds for students.

Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, has reported deaths from alcoholism in Illinois last year as far below any other annual figure since 1920 and states that provisional statistics indicate the improvement has continued during 1930. The decline last year was general throughout the state, falling in about equal ratio in Chicago and elsewhere. For Chicago, the fatalities from alcoholism and cirrhosis of the liver combined stood at 449 last year compared with 528 in 1928.
The corresponding figures for down-state were 464 for 1929 and 534 for 1928. Deaths from alcoholism are more common among the males, says Doctor Hall, deaths of 211 males being attributed directly to alcoholism last year in Illinois and only 19 of women. From cirrhosis of liver, which is not always alcoholic in origin, there were 435 deaths among males and 248 among women.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson is listed as one of the speakers at the annual banquet of the union teachers at Chicago, October 25, in the Stevens hotel.

Fire prevention week was opened with a radio address by State Fire Marshal Legreid in which he gave the fire loss in the United States in 1929 as $473,000,000, or more than $1,000 per minute, and the loss of life due to fire as 10,000 persons. He stated that the total financial loss is equal to the interest on $10,000,000,000 and added, "Thus the loss meant that $10,000,000,000 had to stand idle in 1929 to cover the amount of fire losses."

State examinations for certificates

cants, a total comparing favorably with that of last year.

He addressed the meeting on the subject, "Is the Listing of Securities a Substitute for Qualification?" Mr.
Jackson also represented the southern group by a talk at a luncheon tendered by the Louisville board of trade.

The Illinois Farmers' institute has just issued two pamphlets, one entitled, "Some Questions and Answers on Cold Injury to Corn," by James R.
Holbert of the United States Department of Agriculture, and W. L. Burlson of the University of Illinois, the other on "The Increasing Menace of Weeds," by Prof. J. J. Pieper of the agronomy department of the University of Illinois. Both of these contain addresses that were delivered before the last annual meeting of the Farmers' institute. Copies can be secured by writing to H. O. Allison, secretary Farmers' institute, Springfield, Ill.

Theodore Roosevelt, whose birthday will be observed on October 27, is portrayed in a recent book by Owen Wister, a close friend of the former president. Wister pictures the statesman and the leader as well as the man, but in "The White House Gang," by Looker, the playmate and father is emphasized. The personal life and appeal of Roosevelt is also brought out in Archibald Butt's "Letters" and in "Roosevelt As We Knew Him," compiled by F. S. Wood. These four books may be obtained from the Library Extension Division, Springfield, which has available for loan many interesting biographies of Roosevelt and of other leaders of the United States.

MacMurray college (Illinois Woman's college) of Jacksonville holds its second annual Institute on Pan American Relations on October 10 to 13.
The institute is made possible by the gift of Mr. Chester DeWitt Pugsley, banker, of Peckskill, N. Y., and considers many topics connected with Pan American activities. "Mexico and Its Future" is the title of the banquet speech of his excellency, Senator Dr.
Don Manuel C. Tellez, ambassador to the United States from Mexico.

John Cranor, superintendent of the state reformatory at Pontiac, will be a speaker at the eighth annual conference of District Six of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers at Chenoi Thursday, October 23. This district is composed of associations in Ford, Iroquois, Kankakee, Livingston and McLean counties. The annual conference of District Seven, comprising Marshall, Putnam, Stark, Woodford, Peoria and Tazewell counties occurs on October 24. Mrs. Harry R. Detweiler, Aurora, president of the Illinois congress, will speak at both of these conferences.

A tabulation of the organization work in the various counties included in the list with which the Illinois drought relief commission has been concerned is being made by Homer J. Tice, executive secretary, including the kind and amounts of various relief offered. It is to provide a basis for further activity.

Eighteen more licensed poultry inspectors have been added to the staff available for employment by the state accredited commercial hatcheries, according to announcement of E. G.
Horner, chief poultryman in the state department of agriculture. There were 43 applicants taking the examination in August intended to reveal their familiarity with the standards of perfection for the various breeds and varieties of poultry.

Out of 4,577 commitments to state penal institutions during one year, larceny and larceny in connection with other crimes were responsible for 1,434, and the total termed as larceny crimes, including assaults, attempts and accessories, was 1,447. These figures are given in the annual statistical report of the state department of public welfare for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, recently published. Other crimes committed include: Robbery, 701; burglary, 533; delinquency, including incorrigibility and truancy, 459; confidence game, embracing also conspiracy, embezzlement, perjury, forgery and related crimes, 324; murder, 120; manslaughter, 77; receiving stolen property, receiving deposits when insolvent, concealing stolen property or disposing of mortgaged property, 53.

Passing of what was once one of Springfield's most flourishing industries was noted October 1 when the eighty-year-old Reisch brewery establishment quietly closed its doors. In recent years only a very small portion of the vast plant was used in the manufacturing of soda water, and only about seven men were employed in the work.

On October 10 David H. Jackson, in charge of the securities department of the secretary of state's office, addressed the Illinois Chamber of Commerce at a financial luncheon held in the Stevens hotel, Chicago, on the subject of "What Is Being Done to Protect Investors in Illinois."

Close of the period for registration in Springfield revealed a decrease of about 6,000 from the total number eligible to vote at the fall election of 1928. The natural inference is that interest is not so keen.

Castoria corrects CHILDREN'S ailments

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restful sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine; with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Pines to Be Planted in Reforestation Plan

Open fields at Camp Lee, near Petersburg, Va., where thousands of men received their training during the World war, will be covered with in the next year with between 35,000 and 50,000 yearling "lob-lolly" pines as a part of a reforestation program set by H. M. Sears, supervisor of Natural Bridge national forest, of which Lee military forest is a unit.
The pine seedlings have been set out in nursery beds in the forest, and work of replanting them will probably be started next spring. This type of pine is particularly noted for its rapid growth and ability completely to reforest denuded areas in five or ten years. It is also capable of being used for saw or pulp wood purposes within from 40 to 45 years.

How the Time Was Spent

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to.
Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly.
Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief?

There are many times when Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis.

Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets.

Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection.
Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red.
Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

Tinley Park Garden Notes

Nine members of the Tinley Park Garden Club motored to Palos Park and enjoyed the camp fire luncheon and program on Chicago Day.

Before the program started four other members and four children joined the party.

Mrs. W. B. Combs opened the meeting with a very pleasant greeting and then introduced Mrs. Waterman, 3rd District President. Mrs. Waterman addressed the ladies in a very charming manner. Songs, dances and talks were enjoyed immensely. These were given by Chief Whirling Thunder of the Chippewa tribe of Indians and Chief Chibaboo of the Winnebago tribe. They were clothed in their beautiful costumes, with their lovely headdress of feathers. The children were delighted and so were the Garden Club members for this wonderful Indian summer day program.

Do not forget folks to keep after the rag weed and by and by it will all be cleaned out. This is to help folks that suffer from hay fever.
